Feitleberg

The only information we have about the presence of the Feitleberg family in Leadville is a wood tombstone stating "Infant Feitleberg" that is in rough shape and provides no other information (meaning no dates or name). We can presume that the infant was either stillborn or only a few hours or days old before dying.

Other than that, we have no information pertaining to the Feitleberg family. It is possible that their time in Leadville was either brief or else that they were not very well known.
