Leon Klopman
Occupation: Cotton and produce broker, mine and railroad stockholder
Born: 1846
Birthplace: Louisiana
Died: 22 April 1892

Leon and William Klopman were prominent stockholders who lived in Leadville from 1879 or 1880 to 1885. Despite only residing in town for a short time they obtained a significant amount of stock in Leadville mines.

The Klopman brothers were born to Leopold and Caroline Klopman in Louisiana.<sup>1</sup> Their parents were both immigrants: their father hailing from France and their mother from Germany.<sup>2</sup> They had three sisters and one brother; however, their siblings seemingly did not live in Leadville at any point, deciding instead to remain in Louisiana.<sup>3</sup> Leon was born sometime in 1846 and William was born on June 22, 1852.<sup>4</sup> Leon married a woman named Harriet, though it is unknown whether he did so before, during, or after his time in Leadville.<sup>5</sup> William married sometime prior to or during his residence in Leadville as evidenced by a notice in a Leadville newspaper regarding unclaimed mail for a “Ms. Wm Klopman” at a Leadville post office.<sup>6</sup>

It is unclear whether the brothers arrived in Leadville together or separately. Leon was first listed in the 1880 city directory as working for Harlan, Chapman & Co. and living at 216 Harrison Avenue.<sup>7</sup> William was listed in the 1881 city directory working as a mine broker at Texas House.<sup>8</sup> Newspaper notices and articles indicate, however, that they both arrived in Leadville by late 1879 or early 1880.<sup>9</sup>

Leon and William began to make their mark on Leadville soon after arriving with notices in local newspapers showing them purchasing shares in the Silver Star, Uncle Sam, Soda Card, Ella Divine, and Knickerbocker lodes over the course of 1880.<sup>10</sup> The purpose of the lodes, as was the case with most in Leadville at the time, was silver mining.<sup>11</sup> In the same year William also began participating in Leadville’s Jewish social scene. He joined the Standard Club which had high Jewish membership and attended a ball hosted by the local B’nai B’rith chapter at Turner Hall in November.<sup>12</sup>

Little of note happened to the Klopmans in Leadville over the following years leading up to their departure. William continued to obtain mine shares including an even greater portion of the Uncle Sam lode as well as acquiring shares of the Harland lode.<sup>13</sup> By 1882 Leon had opened a “cotton and stock” business in New York City.<sup>14</sup> William moved to New York City sometime before June 1884, though the 1885 city directory listed him as having a residence at 124 West 3rd Street.<sup>15</sup>

Leon and William remained in New York and New Jersey for the rest of their lives. Leon passed away on April 22, 1892 and was buried at the Jewish Mount Neboh Cemetery in New York.<sup>16</sup> William passed away on August 14, 1915 and was buried at the non-denominational Woodlawn Cemetery in New York.<sup>17</sup>
